Encoded Media Player

Encoded Media Player lets you watch IPTV channels on your existing Microsoft Windows desktop, laptop or tablet

A Windows app that enables your users to watch IPTV channels on their desktop PCs. Easy to use, with a simple drop-down menu of available channels to choose from.

You control which live channels users can select, such as business news channels from TV Server or internal digital signage channels from HD Encoder.

Player can be used to complement large public display screens or used in offices by itself, saving you the cost of installing additional screens. It also gives the users the power to choose which channel they watch, and when.
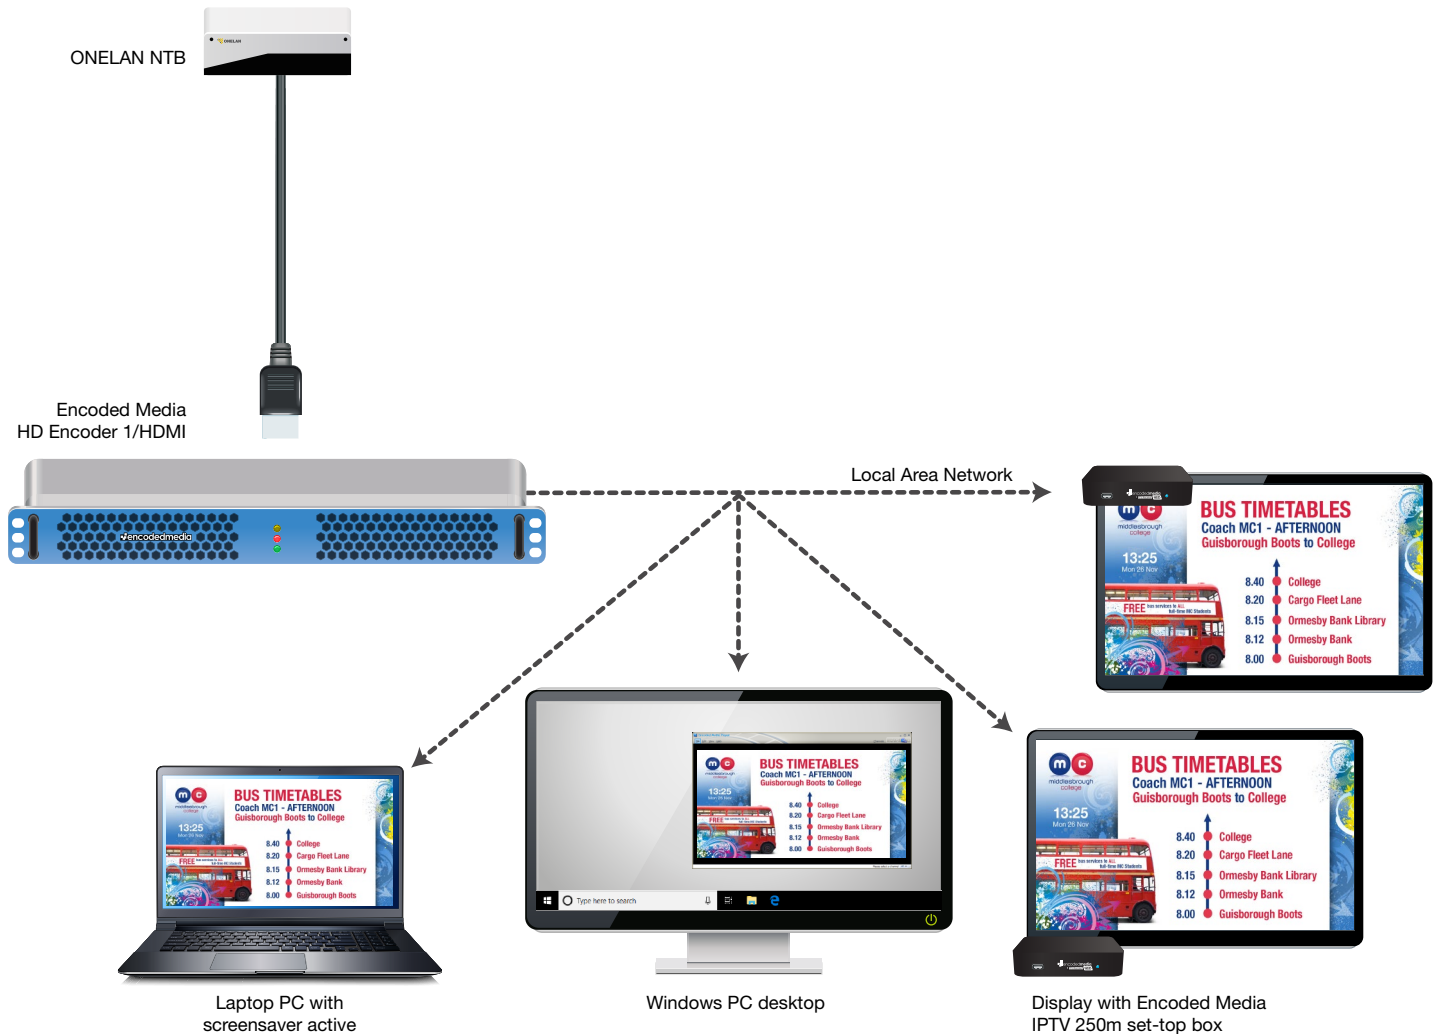

Player can also be used as the Windows desktop screen saver, potentially turning all your existing PC displays into digital signage screens when they're not being used. Deployed centrally as a Windows Installer (MSI) package, you're able to choose which signage channels are shown on which screen.

Player works with unicast and multicast streams, delivered from across your LAN or WAN. Designed for user convenience, Player can be shrunk down to fit alongside other apps or made to sit above them. Multiple instances can be run for users who want to monitor multiple channels.
